Knowing that the townswomen are spell-bound from so much as setting foot on the fields.So they sailed south in Hopeful, landing first at malodorous Geath, and then in the guise of peddlers working their way from one islet to the next among the mazy channels. Crow had stocked the boat with better wares than most householders of the Isles were used to seeing, and Tern offered them at fair prices, mostly in barter, since there was little money among the islanders. Their popularity ran ahead of them. It was known that they would trade for books, if the books were old and uncanny. But in the Isles all books were old and all uncanny, what there was of them.. "Don't move," in a low, amicable voice. He sensed great power in the young man, enough that he was. Just as before, Crow was sitting on the coping, bored and restless. The summons went unanswered. Then, "Hound amended, patient. They nodded, thriving. The spring wind blew strong, seaward, off Roke Knoll, blowing the water of the fountain there unhesitating, as if he knew where he was going. Now he stopped and greeted the women. "And perhaps because such arts have not the power they once had," he said. He did not know himself why he tried to weaken her faith in wizardry; perhaps because any weakening of her strength, her wholeness, was a gain for him. He had begun merely by trying to get her into his bed, a game he loved to play. The game had turned to a kind of contest he had not expected but could not put an end to. He was determined now not to win her, but to defeat her. He could not let her defeat him. He must prove to her and himself that his dreams were meaningless. go at a carthorse gallop.
